[From the National Intelligencer] HOW HAPPY I'LL BE.

BY M. E. M.

A little one playing among the flowers,
In the blush and bloom of summer hours, She twined the buds in a garland fair, And bound them up in her shining hair.
"Ah me!" said she, "how happy I'll be,
When ten years more are grown over me,
And I am a maiden, with youth's bright glow Flushing my cheek, and lighting my brow!"

A maiden mused in a pleasant room, Where the air was filled with soft perfume: Vases were near or antique mould, Beautiful pictures rare and old,
And she, of all the loveliness there, Was by far the loveliest and most fair, "Ah me!" cried she, "how happy I'll be,
When my true love comes home to me!
Light of my life, my spirit's pride, I count the days till thou reachest my side!"

A mother bent over the cradle nest, [rest Where she soothed her babe to his smiling "Sleep well," she murmured, soft and low, As she pressed her kisses on his brow:
"Oh! child, sweet child, how happy I'll be,
If the good God will let thee stay with me, Till later on, in life's evening hour, Thy strength shall be my strength and tower

An aged one sat by the glowing hearth, Almost ready to leave the earth; Feeble and frail, the race she had run Had born her again to the setting sun.
"Ah me!" she breathed, in an under tone,
"How happy I'll be when life is done! [strife When the world fades out with its weary And soar away to a better life!"

'Tis true we journey, from youth to age, Longing to turn to another page, Striving to hasten the years away, Lighting our hearts with the future's ray: Hoping on earth, till its visions fade, Wishing and waiting, through sun and shade Turning, when earth's last ties are riven, To the beautiful rest that remains in heaven.

A Humane Judge.

A Texas Judge concludes a sentence for murder as follows:

"The fact is, Jones, that the court did not intend to order you to be executed before next spring, but the weather is very cold, and our jail unfortunately, is in a very bad condition; much of the glass in the windows is broken, the chimneys are in such a dilapidated state that no fire can be made to render you comfortable; besides, owing to the great number of prisoners, not more than one blanket can be allowed to each; to sleep sound and comfortable, therefore, is out of the question. In consideration of all these circumstances, and wishing to lessen your sufferings as much as possible, the Court, at the exercise of its humane compassion, therefore orders you to be executed to-morrow morning as soon after breakfast as may be convenient to the sheriff and agreeable to you"

Artemus Ward was out late one night recently. Here is his account of return home:

"It was late when I returned home.—
The children and my wife were all abed.
But a candle—a candle made from taller of my own raising—gleamed in Betsy's room. It gleamed for I! All was still.
The silver moon was a shining brite, and the beautiful stars was up to their usual doings! I felt a sentimental mood still so gently o'er me steal, and I pined before Betsy's window and sung in a kind of op'ratie vois as follows, impromptu to-wit, namely:

Wake, Betsy, wake;
My sweet galoot!
Rise up fair lady,
While I toot my lute!

The winder—I regret to say that the winder went up with a violent crash, and a form in spotless white exclaimed, "Omninter the house, yer ole fool. Tormorrow yer'll be goin round complain about yer liver."

The Bankrupt Bill.

"The enactment will be hailed with gratification throughout the country, and especially in those States where are yet to be found the wrecks of financial disasters of 1857, as well as those necessarily attending the late war. But it is chiefly as a Permanent system that this act is to be approved. In this country, where commercial revulsions have been, and are likely to be, periodical, and where there exist as many clashing laws relative to debtors and creditors as there are States, and each law inoperative beyond the State, a uniform system is particularly required, and the framers of the Constitution, with wise foresight, provide for it. The absence of a uniform law in this country has been an opprobrium to its legislation.
Every commercial country, and in none was it so necessary as in this, enjoys this advantage.

The necessity for such law has been recognized in the Legislatures of every State of the Union. All the States have insolvent or bankrupt laws, and occasionally they have stay laws or other measures for the relief of debtors. But this law, while it accomplishes the former object, also provides for the security of creditors.

It is understood that this law sweeps away all State insolvent laws, and stay laws and laws of imprisonment for debts."

SATURDAY, MARCH 23, 1867.

Just as We Expected.

The Raleigh Sentinel, we observe, is doing all it possibly can to make the colored people believe that the Sentinel and its friends, are the best friends the colored people have. The Sentinel favored the plan of Gov. Worth to distribute the colored people throughout the United States some months ago, and now insults the colored people by trying to make them believe that it is their best friend! There never was more "dirt eat" in the world than the secessionists are feasting now. The Sentinel says "nearly all the conservative press of the State, are a unit upon the measure." Of course they are a unit after they have been coerced into their present position. That our readers may see how Brother Pell turns somersets, we append the following from the Sentinel of the 12th inst:

"We are glad to learn that our colored people do not intend to commit themselves hastily to any palizian movement among the whites. They are gartel to the Congress and to the people of the Union, for securing them their liberty and conferring on them civil and political rights, and they intend to try, to show to the world that they appreciated the privileges—but they know the white people among whom they have been raised—they think they know whom to trust upon whom to rely. They know that their liberties and rights will be best maintained and secured by a peaceable and orderly course, and by seeking to promote a quite and stable government for the State. Hence they will be caution with whom they ally themselves. They will not support those who design to keep up faction and disturbance. They are ready to co-operate only with good and loyal men, who seek the ends of peace and good will to all and who are ready to give the black man, as well as the white man, a chance to live and let live."

The colored people are already committed to the Union Party of this and every other State. The Sentinel and its friend would enslave them to-morrow if they had the power. Will the Sentinel deny this? The dominant party of the South knew and they know now that under their rule, the Union would have never been restored and they would have remained in power until doomsday rather than gave way and allowed the Union people to restore the Union on a loyal basis. They have been driven from their seats by a loyal Congress, for which the Congress has the thanks of every loyal man and the curses of every rebel and traitor, among whom are all the editors of the Secession press of this State. The colored people need no counsel from the Sentinel; they are for the Union and against the defunct old war party that would have and intended to make the blacks fight to enslave themselves! Of that party hails the foul-mouthed traitor of the Raleigh Sentinel. We thank God that their duty of power is well nigh over, and will rejoice in joy that is unspeakable when the last vestige of treason has been uprooted and forced from office and power throughout the South.

No Leniency.

We hope no leniency will be shown rebels and traitors while the works of reconstruction is going on. None but men that can be trusted and depended upon, should be taken into the Union Party at this time. We hope our leading men will aid no man in being relieved, but men who are, and have been all the time, "unmistakably" loyal. Everything must be done this time to prevent another trick like that of Jonathan Worth. If the power is taken from the Union men this time, for years to come, they will be under rebel rule. No prejudice should be raised against the colored people; the new enfranchised people, and must be informed and instructed in order that they may be able to act their part as a part of the Union Party. We urge upon every Union man, the importance of organization. Be up and doing—Buckle on your armor and be ready to battle for the Union cause.

"The country must have rest. Hunger, nakedness and death, not only for ourselves but for our children, lie in the pathway of continued embroilment and agitation. We have prayed to be let alone, but this prayer is unavailing. We have labored and prayed for peace and constitutional freedom, but these are boons to come to us at the will of the ruling power. The country for the present is one—it ought to be one, if concord and harmony ever visit our land again.—Such a Union as we have had may never be ours again, yet the country is indissoluble and inseparable. Shall it be again united, peaceable and prosperous? That day may be distant, yet we owe it to posterity, that we shall not prevent her early return to peace and quiet."

What shall we do? We acknowledge our incapacity to instruct our readers on this momentous question. The mind grows dizzy and benumbed, in contemplating it. We advise no man to take a course, that will soil his honor or his conscience. If conscience and honor forbid your co-operation in the plan of reconstruction as provided by Congress, it is your plain duty, not to put barriers nor impediments in the way of those who will do it. Resistance longer is folly and ruin."

The above is from the Raleigh Sentinel of the 6th inst. It is just what we have contended for all the while. At this late day, when a bill for the reorganization of the Southern States has passed and their is no way to avoid the issue, the Sentinel uses the above language.—For nearly two years has the Sentinel and its friends kept up in this State a continual strife. They refused the Howard Amendment and are responsible for the passage of the Sherman Bill. After resisting as long as safe to resist, the Sentinel now says further resistance is "folly and ruin." It seems to us a man with no eyes would have seen the "folly and ruin," that resistance to the national authority would have brought upon our people; but when the Sentinel can no longer resist, then it comes out and says the "country must have rest," that resistance any longer is "folly and ruin." We hope the Sentinel is really penitent and that it will advise its friends to take back seats and by no means put themselves in the way of reconstruction.—The work must be done by loyal men alone.

Sound Doctrine.

The following extract from a letter to the editor of the Standard, will found to contain much that is good and wholesome. Let this warning be heeded;

"It is unnecessary for me to say to you that I have great confidence in your political sagacity, and while I have differed with you upon some unimportant doings, bearing upon reconstruction, I am free to say, that in the main you have been right."

I like many in the South accepted the "President's plan," not on account of any improper or disloyal feeling towards Congress or the North, but from an earnest desire to embrace the most [as we supposed] expeditious mode to reconstruct the South. To get back quickly, was what we most desired, the manner of accomplishing it mattered not. An earnest wish pervades all classes of our people that the country may be at peace, and all wish a speedy reconstruction of the government, and will accept in good faith the plan now proposed by Congress, and will give the best possible evidence of their approval through public meetings, at the ballot-box, &c. I would gladly give my support in the promotion of that object, but unfortunately, fall within the excepted class. I shall however, on all proper occasions, advise our people to organize, and at the proper time, that they select delegates that will, in every way, be acceptable to the people at home and unexceptionable on account of previous political differences to the dominant party in Congress. This must be done. It is idle to assemble in Convention persons whose antecedents are obnoxious, and offensive to the great ruling masses of the North. It would, instead of improving the political condition of the South, render it infinitely worse. There now can be no half way ground. We must be reconstructed according to the plan proposed, and by those alone who will be acceptable to Congress, or worse will come of it.

In view of the magnitude and importance of the question and speedy solution of the difficulties in our path, I would respectfully suggest that you take the responsibility of assuming that the Standard is the organ of the party that must reorganize and reconstruct the State of North Carolina, and as such organ, that it call a Convention to meet in the City of Raleigh at an early day. It may be asked why may not the Governor of the Legislature or both together do this? for the best reason in the world. The Republican party North look upon both Governor and Legislature as disloyal and contaminated with treason. A new order must demand new ideas, new organizations, new representatives, new men. Let us make haste to establish the new and get the old State on its legs again—there can be no hope for her future without reconstruction; it would be madness to reject it."

To Union Men.

Now is the time for action. The plan of our enemies in the present crisis is to call a convention through their bogus legislature or governor, and by thoroughly concerted action to control the organization, of the new state. This plan must be frustrated.—Congress has given us an opportunity to paralyze the power which has oppressed us. Let us be awake and on the alert; ready to do whatever may be done for our own salvation.

Let the Union men of every section awake. Let them meet both in the private council and in mass convention, and concert measures for instant and harmonious action.

Let no foolish prejudice stand in the way. We said six months and more ago that in less than one year the Union men of the South would "be called upon to choose between salvation at the hand of the negro or destruction at the hand of rebels." We appealed to time, and the Avenger has answered us literally. The Union men of the South must now work in harmony with the negroes and save themselves from rebel rule by their aid, or allow that power which is their only safety to be controlled by their foes. Which will we do? Shall we stand in our foolish dignity and wait, while our wiser enemies cut our throats with the knife our own hands have whetted? Shall we refuse to co-operate with, and utilize the power of the negro, to guide and control his political course, from any foolish fear of that flimsy humbug "nigger equality?" We are compelled to recognize the negro a political equal, whether we will it or not. It has passed out of our hands. The thirty-ninth Congress will be remembered with affectionate gratitude for its action on this subject. We have now to choose whether we will make them political, equal, co-working friends and faithful arms of our enemies for political refuge. We must face the music squarely. If any Union man is now too good or too white to co-operate with the negro, on a basis of complete and absolute political equality in the political regeneration of the South, let him go over to the rebels. He is at best but a whitewashed loyalist.—His unionism is but skin deep and his opposition is worth more to us than his aid.—This act will separate the chaff from the wheat. Let all brave, true hearted unionists who are not afraid of shadows, come up to the work bravely and earnestly, for their own salvation.—Register.

The Boy for the Times.

We like an active boy one who has the impulse of the age—the steam-boat—in him.

A lazy, plodding, snail chap, might have got along in the world fifty years ago, but he won't do for these times.—We live in an age of quickness. Men think quick, eat, sleep, court and die quick—and slow coaches are not tolerated. Go ahead if you burst your boiler, is the motto of every one—and he succeeds the best who has the most "do or die" in him.

Strive, boys, to catch the spirit of the times, be up and dressed always, not gaping and rubbing your eyes as if you were half asleep—but be wide awake, for whatever may turn up, and you will be somebody before you die.

Think, plan, reflect as much as you please before you act, but closely, quickly, and when you have fixed your eye upon a mark, spring for the object at once.

But above all things, be honest. If you intend to be an artist, carve it in the wood—chisel it in the marble, if a merchant, write it in your ledger.

A Touching Case.

The Philadelphia Press of Tuesday relates the following:

On Monday evening, Johanna Wissem, a German woman, aged about 80 years, was found by a Twelfth-district police officer wandering about the streets in the Twentieth ward. He took her to the stationhouse, where she related a pitiful story about the manner in which she had been treated by her children. She said that she had been living with her son Casper, at No. 611 Master street. On Monday afternoon he had her bed trunk, and other articles put into a wagon, and sent to the residence of his brother Jacob, at No. 1213 Girard avenue. The old lady was sent along with her goods, but Jacob refused to take either into the house. The article were allowed to remain on the sidewalk, and Mrs. Wissem wandered about the streets.

During the evening Lieut. Jacoby sent for another son John, who is a baker at Amboy and Oxford streets. He likewise refused to do anything for his mother. Yesterday morning Casper was again sent for. He refused to have anything to do with his mother, claiming that he had done more for her than his brothers; demanding that they should provide for her. They aver that provisions were made and money deposited in Casper's hands for the support of the old lady. Mrs. Wissem says that her sons have got all her money, and now desire to get rid of her because she is penniless. The Guardians of the Poor have taken her in charge temporarily.

SMUGGLING.—The Government has received information of the seizure of a lot of hogheads of sugar imported from Cuba, landed at Bull's Bay, South Carolina, without payment of duties, and then carried into the country. On seizing and opening them, each hoghead had a barrel in the centre of the sugar. Seven barrels were filled with West India rum, on which the duty was over $70 a barrel and five barrels with high priced segars, &c.

Know Thy Destiny.

MADAME E. F. THORNTON, the great English Astrologist, Clairvoyant and Psychometrist, who has astonished the scientific classes of the Old World, has now located herself at Hudson, N. Y. Madame Thornton possesses such wonderful powers of second sight, as to enable her to impart knowledge of the greatest importance to the single or married of either sex. While in a state of trance she delineates the very features of the person you are to marry and by the aid of an instrument of intense power known as the Psychometre, guarantees to produce a life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant together with date of marriage, position in life, leading traits of character, &c. This is no humbug, as thousands of testimonials can assert. She will send when desired a certified certificate, or written guarantee, that the picture is what it purports to be. By enclosing a small lock of hair and stating place of birth, age, disposition and complexion and enclosing fifty cents and stamped envelope addressed to yourself you will receive the picture and desired information by return mail. All communications sacredly confidential. Address in confidence, MADAME E. F. THORNTON, P. O. Box. 223 Hudson, N. Y. [no 38 1y saco.]

A Large 6 pp. Circular, giving information of the greatest importance to the young of both sexes.

It teaches how the homely may be made beautiful, the despised respected, and the forsaken loved.

No young lady or gentleman should fail to send their Address, and receive a copy post-paid by return mail. Address P. O. Drawer, 21, Troy, N. Y. [38-1y-saco]

A YOUNG LADY returning to her country home after a sojourn in the City was hardly recognised by her friends. In place of a coarse rustic face she had a soft ruddy complexion of almost marble smoothness and instead of twenty-three she really appeared but eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the causes of so great a change she plainly told them that she used the CIRCASSIAN BALM, and considered it an invaluable acquisition to any Lady's toilet. By its use any Lady or Gentleman can improve their personal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in its combination, as Nature herself is simple yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities kindly healing the same and leaving the surface as Nature intended it should be, clear soft, smooth and beautiful. The Spring Term of the Superior Court, for this county, has been in session in this place for the past week. His best literary matter published in the United States, and is decidedly the largest Magazine that we know of. The contents are really interesting. Terms

Franklin Square, New York.

State Laws.

The Laws passed by the "so-called" Legislature and Convention are all valid until proclaimed null and void by the General appointed for this District. The courts will proceed with their business in the same way.

Counterfeit.

The Wilmington Dispatch says a new and dangerous counterfeit five dollar National Bank note has recently been put afloat—which is well executed and likely to deceive. In the genuine, the group of Columbus is composed of five, in the counterfeit there are but four—the one in the back ground at the extreme and most extreme figure in the group is missing. In the counterfeit, also, the extended arm of Columbus is without a hand. Bill of this description on five different banks have already appeared.

"After the War; a Southern Tour," Mr. Whitlow Reid's book, receives great praises from the January number of the Westminster written by Mr. Reid during his residence in the South, where he had large business operations. The following extract may be read with profit by such of our people as are complaining of the congressional reconstruction. Mr. Reid met General Yorke.

"Scarred with three wounds, and back among those for whom he had unsuccesfully fought, At Monecy he led the final charge which swept back Lew Wallace's forces, and opened the way for Ewell and Breckinridge to the capit ol. At Spottsylvania a bullet struck him in the head; in another Virginia battle he was wounded in the shoulder; from several he came out with clothes riddled with bullets, and all his horses shot under him; at last, in the Wilderness, his arm was carried away.
You don't know what you're taking about," he exclaimed, impetuously, to someone who was haranguing against the tyranny and cruelty of the Government;

"I tell you, sir, you have got and I got the most merciful Government in the world.
What's the use of us trying to disguise the fact? We attempted to destroy the Government and failed; any other would have hung me for my share in the matter, and would have had a perfect right to do it.
I consider myself a standing proof of the mercy of my Government. It confiscated my property while I was gone, fighting against it. I don't complain; it did perfectly right. Since then I have got my property back; a thing I had no right to expect, and I'm very grateful for it.
I only want a chance to prove my grate-tude. If we get into a war about this Mexican business, I'll try and show the Government how I appreciate its generosity to me." Some one said the war wasn't over yet. "Isn't it?" said the general.
"Well, maybe you haven't had enough of it. But I tell you the men that did the fighting have. What's more, they are satisfied to quit and take things as they can get them; More still; I don't know of anybody that isn't satisfied to quit, except the stay-at-home sneaks that have never yet made a beginning. You are very full of fight now, all of a sudden, when it isn't needed; why didn't you show some of it when we wanted you in the trenches at Richmond?"

ORATION.—We learn that Mr. R. W.
Lassiter, Esq. of Oxford, has been appointed by the Worshipful Grand Master E. G. Reader to deliver the oration on the life and character of the late Grand Secetary, Wm. T. Bain. The oration is to be delivered in December next before the Grand Lodge.

And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.

REPARATOR CAPILLI

For restoring hair upon bald heads (from what ever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of the hair or beard, witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It certainly is difficult, a nine-tenths of the dexter Preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase.
To such we would say, try the Reperator Capilli; it will cast you nothing unless it fully comes up to our representations. If your Druggist does not keep it, send us one dollar and we will forward it, postpaid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned you on application providing entire satisfaction is not given. Address,

SELECTED POETRY.

THE BLIND BOY.

Dear Mary, said the poor blind boy,
That little bird sings very long;
Say can you see him in his joy,
And is he pretty as his song?

Yes, Edward, yes, replied the maid; I see the bird on yonder tree.
The poor boy sighed and gently said, Sister, I wish that I could see.

The flowers, you say, are very fair,
And bright green leaves are on the trees, And pretty birds are singing there—How beautiful for one who sees?

Yet I the fragrant flower can smell, And I can feel the green leaves shade,
And I can hear the notes that swell From these dear birds that God hath made.

No, sister, God to me is kind, Though sight alas! he has not given;
But, tell me, are there any blind Among the children up in heaven?

No, dearest Edward, there all see;
But why ask me a thing so odd?
Oh! Mary, he's so kind to me, I thought I'd like to look at God.

Ere long, disease his hand had laid On that dear boy, so meek and mild; His widowed mother wept and prayed That God would spare her sightless child.

He felt her warm tears on his face,
And said, oh! never weep for me;
I'm going to a bright, bright place, Where Mary says I God shall see.

And you'll come there—dear Mary too;
But mother, when you get up there, Tell Edward, mother, that 'tis you—You know I never saw you here.

He spoke no more, but sweetly smiled, Until the final blow was given,
When God took up that poor blind child.
And opened first his eyes in heaven.

The Longest Story on Record.

The following will amuse almost any one who will take the trouble and spare the time to read it through.

There was once a certain king, who like many Eastern kings, was very fond of hearing stories told.
To this amusement he gave up all his time, but yet he was never satisfied. The exertions of his courtiers were all in vain. He at last made a proclamation that if any man should tell him a story that would last forever, he would certainly make him his heir and give the princess, his daughter, in marriage, but if any one should pretend he had such a story and should fail—that is, if the story did come to an end—he was to have his head cut off.

For such a price as a beautiful princess and a kingdom, many candidates appeared, and dreadful long stories some of them told, some of them lasted a week, some a month and some six months.
Poor fellows! they all spun them out as long as they could, but all in vain: sooner or later they all came to an end, one after another and the unlucky story tellers had their heads chopped off. At last came a man who said he had a story that would last forever, if his majesty would be pleased to give him a trial. He was warned of his danger, they told him how many others had tried and lost their heads, but he said he was not afraid, so he was brought before the king. He was a man of very composed and deliberate way of speaking, after making all necessary stipulations for his eating drinking and sleeping, he thus began:

"O, king! there was once a king who was a great tryant, and, desiring to increase his riches, he seized upon the corn in his kingdom and put it in an immense granary, which was built on purpose as a mountain. This he did for several years, until the granary was quite full. He then stopped doors and windows on all sides. But the bricklayers had, by accident, left a very small hole near the top of the granary, and there came a flight of locusts and tried to get at the corn, but the hole was so small that only one locust went in and carried off one grain of corn and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn, and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn, and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn, and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn."

He had gone on thus from morning till night [except when he was engaged at his meal] for about a month, when the king began to be rather tired with his locusts, and interrupted him with,

"Well, well! we have heard enough of the locust, we will suppose they helped themselves to all the corn they wanted. Tell us what happened afterwards."

To which the story teller answered deliberately.
"If it pleases your majesty, it is impossible to tell what happened afterwards before I tell what happened first. and then he went on again:

"And then another locust went in and carried off another
locust went in and carried off another grain of corn, and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn, and then
off another grain of corn, and then
off another grain of corn, and then another locust went in and carried off another grain of corn."

The king listened with unconquerable patience for six months more, than when he again interrupted him with—

"O, friend! I am weary of your locusts! How soon do you think they will have done?"

To which the story teller made answer,

"O, king? who can tell? At the time to which my story has come the locust have cleared a small place—it may be a cubic foot each way round the hole—and the air is still dark with locusts on all sides. But let the king have patience and no doubt we shall have come to the end of them in time.

Thus encouraged, the king listened on for another full year, the story teller going on still as before.

"And then another locust went in and carried off another grain of
of corn, and then another locust
went in and carried off another
locust went in and carried off an-

At last the poor king could stand it no longer, and cried out,

"O, man! that is enough!
Take my daughter! take my kingdom! take any thing—every thing! Only let me hear no more of the abominable locusts.
